Annex

CONCLUSIONS OF THE SECOND MINISTERIAL SYMPOSIUM ON THE INDUSTRIALIZATION OF THE LEAST DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

1. The symposium considered the working paper prepared by the UNIDO Secretariat, Financing the Industrial Action Programme for the LDCs: A Challenge for the 1990s (PPD.254(SPEC.)), and found it to be comprehensive and relevant. The delegates considered the major findings in the paper to be in conformity with the experiences of the least developed countries with respect to industrialization. In view of the crucial role of industry, the delegates expressed concern at the stagnation of the industrial sector over the past decade when its contribution to gross domestic product remained constant at approximately 8 per cent and they also expressed concern at the declining share of the sector in the official development assistance of bilateral and multilateral institutions.

2. It was stressed that the 47 least developed countries (29 in Africa, 4 in Arab States, 13 in Asia and the Pacific, and 1 in Latin America and the Caribbean) comprised 500 million people who constitute a formidable number of producers and consumers, having the potential to increase global gross domestic product substantially. It was in the interest of the world economy that industrialization efforts in the least developed countries be vigorously promoted.

3. It was pointed out that the least developed countries were implementing major structural adjustment programmes which involved, among others, reducing the size of the public sector, rationalizing the various regulatory institutions, liberalizing the trade regime, and promoting the private sector. These changes, while auguring well for the future, entailed extreme difficulties in the short term, particularly in respect of rehabilitation of existing industries, development of new industries because of lack of adequate funding, inadequate infrastructure development resulting from competing demand for limited resources, and the collapse of many industries now facing competition after many years of protection.

4. The delegates emphasized that it is of utmost importance that support for industry, particularly adequate resource allocation, be reinforced by national, regional, and international bodies.

5. The delegates noted that the first Ministerial Symposium on the Industrialization of the Least Developed Countries, held in Vienna in November 1991, had laid down the foundation of the strategy for industrialization in the least developed countries and reaffirmed their commitment to the Industrial Action Programme for the Least Developed Countries (PI/114). They were of the opinion that the paper presented in the second Symposium addressed the crucial issue of financing industrialization in the least developed countries and endorsed the conclusions and recommendations of the working paper as a basis for the formulation of national and international strategies in the field of financing for industry.

6. The participating countries presented statements on their national strategies for industrial financing and also expressed their appreciation of the participation of financing institutions, particularly the African Development Bank and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Fund for International Development.

The Symposium:

(a) Noted with grave concern the diminishing share of financial resources directed to the industrial sector in the least developed countries;

(b) Recognized the vacuum created by the deterioration of national development finance institutions in many of the least developed countries;

(c) Stressed the continuing need for national development finance institutions with new operating modalities, whilst acknowledging the inadequacies of these institutions in the past;

(d) Recognized the potential for improved mobilization of domestic savings;

(e) Emphasized the need for adequate access by the least developed countries to the international capital markets and official development finance of multilateral and bilateral institutions and for ensuring the continuous inflow of resources from these institutions to the least developed countries;

(f) Emphasized the urgent need for implementation of the recommendations as contained in the Paris Declaration and the Programme of Action for the least developed countries for the 1990s adopted by the Second United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries held in Paris in September 1990;

(g) Suggested removal of existing obstacles to the flow of financial resources to the least developed countries;

(h) Suggested that appropriate mechanisms be developed to ease the debt burden including giving high priority to debt cancellation;

(i) Emphasized the importance of enhanced industrial competitiveness, as a condition for integrating the economies of the least developed countries into the world manufacturing system;

(j) Reaffirmed the paramount importance of small- and medium-scale industries as a major component in the industrial development of their countries;

(k) Expressed concern about the severity of conditionality required by creditors, considering that this is a major factor in restricting the access of small- and medium-scale industries to credit;

(l) Recognized the particular need for improving national capacities in project identification, formulation, monitoring, and implementation;

(m) Further recognized the necessity of formulating and implementing industrial policies that create an enabling environment for private sector development;

(n) Recognized the need to take measures with a view to encouraging subregional and regional economic integration;

(o) Emphasized the importance of adequate access to credit for women entrepreneurs, particularly in view of the major role played by them in the small- and medium-sized industries sector;

(p) Recognized the particular capability of UNIDO to provide complementary services to both lenders and borrowers of finance for industry;

(q) Called for UNIDO to increase further its cooperation with financing institutions at national, regional and international levels;

(r) Urged UNIDO to intensify its efforts in building national capacities, particularly as regards human resource development and technological development for industry;

(s) Requested UNIDO to continue and expand its activities in the field of industrial information systems in order to provide the appropriate technical, economic and commercial intelligence for the least developed countries;

(t) Appreciated the efforts of the Director-General of UNIDO to reorient the activities and structure of the Organization in the light of changes in the world economy and, in particular, to respond to the demands of the least developed countries in their industrialization efforts.

Further taking note of the report of the Director-General on participation of UNIDO in international cooperation to study and mitigate the consequences of the Chernobyl accident, underlining the importance of UNIDO's efforts to mobilize resources for the preparation of the industrial survey of Belarus, the Russian Federation and Ukraine affected by the Chernobyl accident,

1. Appeals to the Member States as well as international and financial institutions to give support to the international cooperation for Chernobyl, including the provision of financial resources for implementation of the priority projects defined in the report of the Director-General;

2. Requests the Director-General to continue to take appropriate measures in accordance with General Conference resolution GC.4/Res.1 and to reflect the progress made in the implementation of the present resolution in the Annual Report.

GC.5/Res.20 YAOUNDE DECLARATION

The General Conference

Adopts the following Declaration:

We, the Member States of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization,

Having met at Yaoundé from 6 to 9 December 1993 for the fifth session of the General Conference of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization,

Having considered the challenges and opportunities arising from the recent changes in the world situation particularly the strong trends towards deregulation and restructuring which require appropriate responses in the field of industrial development,

Having concluded that UNIDO urgently needs to improve its capacity to make optimal use of available resources,

1. Unanimously approve a far-reaching reform programme to enable the Organization to better realize its objectives and strengthen its role as the central coordinating agency in the United Nations system for the promotion of the industrialization of developing countries;

2. Affirm that a reformed UNIDO should enhance the impact of its activities, ensure greater economy and efficiency, improve the quality of its programmes and performance and respond more effectively to specific demands of Member States;

3. Appreciate in this regard, the determination of the Director-General to bring about major changes in UNIDO's management and structure, including the introduction of improved measures for management and evaluation, on the basis of the principles of balance and efficiency, and encourage him further in this task;

4. Reiterate that the major means of achieving UNIDO's objectives of environmentally sustainable and equitable industrial development remain investment promotion, technology transfer, development of human resources and the creation of an enabling environment, both nationally and internationally, for industrial growth and competitiveness;

5. Emphasize that UNIDO should:

(a) Give special attention to the industrialization of the least developed countries, which face particular constraints in their resources and infrastructure;

(b) Accord high priority to the industrialization of Africa and to the realization of the objectives of the Second Industrial Development Decade for Africa;

(c) Strengthen its capabilities to promote the restructuring, rehabilitation and privatization of industries, including those of economies in transition without prejudice to the needs of developing countries;

(d) Also strengthen its efforts to promote economic and technical cooperation among developing countries, increased participation of women in industrialization, and the development of small and medium enterprises;

(e) Continue to improve cooperation and coordination with other international organizations and financial institutions, particularly with a view to mobilizing additional resources for industrial development;

6. Hereby firmly commit ourselves in the light of the above to renewing our political and financial support to the revitalized UNIDO and call upon Member States which are in a position to do so and the international community to provide additional resources to support the reformed UNIDO, thereby contributing to an increased impact of the Organization's activities in recipient countries.
